GOV. ROOSEVELT ATTACKS HOOVER AND PROHIBITION

Assails Republican Leaders and Platform in New Jersey Speech

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 27—(AP)—Declaring that the Democratic platform and the candidates have "fairly and squarely met" the prohibition issue, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, asserted here today that President Hoover and the Republican leadership "stand convicted of trying to evade and confuse the issue."

"The methods adopted since the great war with the purpose of achieving a greater temperance by prohibition have been accompanied," he said, "in most parts of the country by complete and tragic failure."

At Democratic Rally
Mr. Roosevelt was the guest of a Democratic rally arranged by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and other state leaders. The nominee's speech here was the second in his road campaign. The first was at Columbus, Ohio, last Saturday. With him today were Mrs. Roosevelt, and their two younger sons, Franklin, Jr., and John, both school boys.

Referring to the acceptance speeches of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis, relative to prohibition, Mr. Roosevelt alluded to the 1930 gubernatorial election in New York state. He was re-elected to a second term that year.

In that year, he declared, "there was a party that tried to ride two horses at the same time. The Republican party had one foot—its candidate for governor—on the wet horse and the other foot—the candidate for lieutenant governor—on the dry horse. Unfortunately the horses insisted on going in different directions and the party fell to the ground between them."

This year, he added, "the Republican national leaders have tried the same circus stunt. The answer of the voters throughout the nation will be precisely the same."

G. O. P. Leaders "Convicted"
The present Republican leadership, Roosevelt asserted, "stands convicted of trying to evade and confuse the issue. The honest dry will honor more the honest wet than the shifty dry and the anti-Prohibitionist prefers the four-square dry to the uncertain wet."

He said, "All will join in condemning a fearful and timid practice of evasion."

Attack On Hoover
The Democratic presidential aspirant declared Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech "proceeds deliberately to misrepresent the position of the Democratic party. He says 'our opponents pledge the members of their party to destroy every vestige of constitutional and effective federal control of the liquor traffic.'"

"I have the right to assume that the President read the Democratic platform and on that assumption I charge that this statement was made to mislead the people of the country and I assert a mere reading of the plain, unequivocal provisions of the Democratic platform will sustain that charge."

The Democratic platform, he said, "expressly and unequivocally opposes the return of the saloon, and with equal emphasis it demands that there be federal control of the liquor traffic to protect dry states."

The Oracle of Delphi
Mr. Roosevelt likened the Republican convention to the ancient Oracle of Delphi who, when partially stupefied by the gases from a volcanic crevice, uttered strange and incoherent words which the high priests interpreted.

"In June, the Republican oracle sat in Chicago," he said. "There was a fume of heated oratory and when the convention was over the people asked the high priests of the party what it all meant."

"The Secretary of State (Mr. Stimson) explained in the choicest phrases of Republican diplomacy. Senator Borah spoke out in forthright fashion and said it sounded wet to him; President Butler (of Columbia University) said the words were dry."

"I suspect that those who wrote the plank thought it would sound dry to the drys and wet to the wets. But to the consternation of the high priests it sounded dry to the wets and wet to the drys."

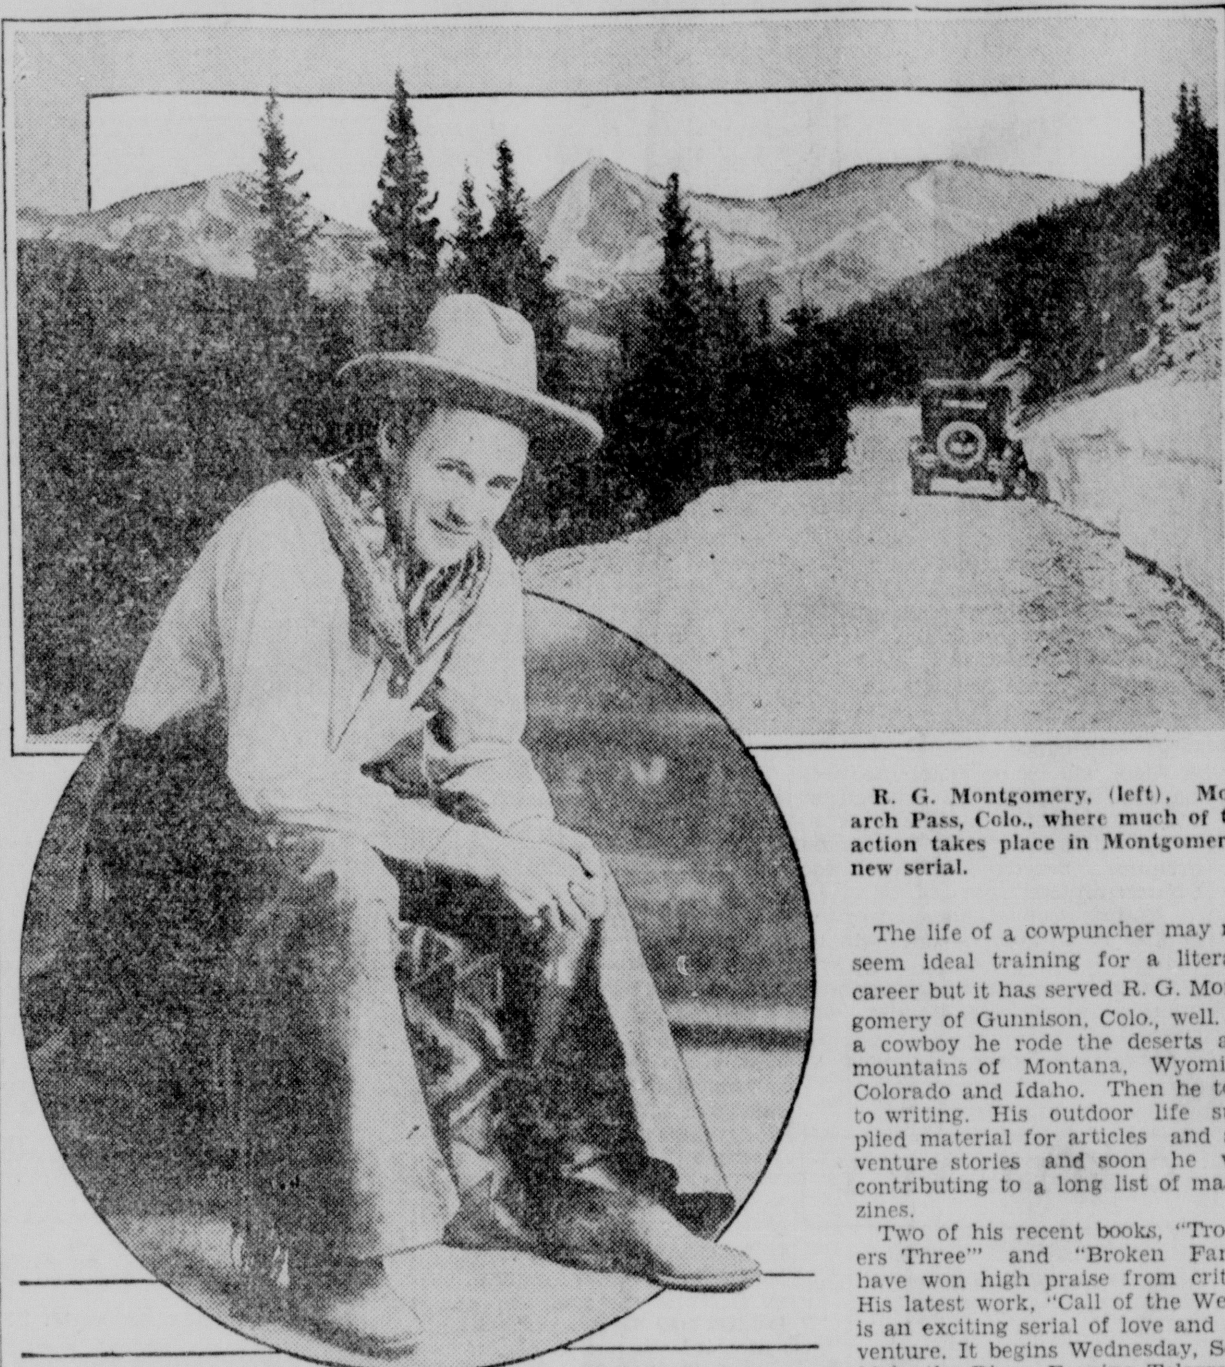

"The Democratic convention," the candidate for president continued "fairly and squarely met the issue. It adopted by an overwhelming vote a plank so plain and clear and honest that no one could doubt its meaning."

"The experience of 150 years has shown us that the proper means of regulating the use of alcoholic beverages, Mr. Roosevelt said, "is through the states, with control by the federal government limited to that which is necessary to protect the states."

"This I submit," he continued, "is the principle embodied in our Democratic platform; and I state further that it is not the principle stated in the Republican platform or in the speeches of acceptance of

Cowboy, Turned Author, Writes Serial

R. G. Montgomery, (left), Monarch Pass, Colo., where much of the action takes place in Montgomery's new serial.

The life of a cowpuncher may not seem ideal training for a literary career but it has served R. G. Montgomery of Gunnison, Colo., well. As a cowboy he rode the deserts and mountains of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and Idaho. Then he took to writing. His outdoor life supplied material for articles and adventure stories and soon he was contributing to a long list of magazines.

Two of his recent books, "Troopers Three" and "Broken Fang," have won high praise from critics. His latest work, "Call of the West," is an exciting serial of love and adventure. It begins Wednesday, Sept. 14 in the Dixon Evening Telegraph.

HOOVER PROGRAM FOR PROSPERITY MADE DEFINITE

America's Business Chiefs Formulate Definite Plans

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Washington, Aug. 27—(AP)—America's business chieftains, prompted to new efforts, carried to the nation's four corners today a definite program for stimulating its economic life.

In no uncertain terms, President Hoover and Democratic leaders such as Owen D. Young, of New York; Allee Pomeroy, of Ohio and Wilson McCarthy of Salt Lake City have reminded the business generals that the time has come for a new drive toward more employment.

Response by the unusual gathering of financial and industrial leaders was immediate in the creation of a central committee, headed by Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker, to steer a six-point program of economic betterment to conclusion.

Action followed multiplied expressions of confidence from government and business pilots to the assembled members of banking and industrial committees of the twelve Federal reserve districts.

After hearing President Hoover's conviction that the "major financial crisis" has been overcome, the administration's national conference was advised of a move for a 60-day moratorium in foreclosure proceedings on all mortgages in closed banks.

Also revealed was a reconstruction program for railroads, sponsored by the Reconstruction Corporation and designed to put 50,000 men to work.

Will Put Men to Work
As members turned homeward, it was the firm conviction of Washington, certainly of Secretary Mills and Mr. Young who fostered the idea, that a united leadership now is ready to put more dollars and men to work.

"We are going ahead vigorously—make no question of that," asserted the Treasury head. Mr. Young nodded assent.

Indicative of their determination some of the newly appointed committees met last night. Others were in conference today. Behind the voluntary groups was the solid support of Federal agencies.

They had one goal in mind—it was consistently and determinedly hammered home yesterday—that every man must have a job and that for every man to go to work capital and credit must be released for productive enterprise. The industrial and agricultural fronts were designated by Mr. Hoover as the firing line.

Outline Six Point Plan
The six point plan and the men to head each of the committees to carry it into effect follows:

MRS. MCCORMICK LEAVES PART OF MONEY TO KRENN

He Trades Inheritance For Sure Monthly Income of $2000

Chicago, Aug. 27—(AP)—The turreted mansion at 1000 Lake Shore Drive, scene of brilliant festivities for the elite of the world, was quiet this afternoon—flower-decked for the funeral of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

After brief services conducted at the home by the Rev. William S. Meyer of the Fourth Presbyterian church, the body of the daughter of John D. Rockefeller was to be taken to the chapel at Graceland Cemetery for final simple rites. Mrs. McCormick will be buried in the family plot beside the body of her firstborn, John Rockefeller McCormick, who died in 1901, four years after Mrs. McCormick arrived here as the bride of Harold F. McCormick, head of the International Harvester Company.

44 Attended Rites
Only 44 persons attended the private funeral John D. Rockefeller, Jr., brother of Mrs. McCormick, arrived here from the east today to complete the group of relatives. Her children, Mrs. Mahilde Oser, Mrs. Muriel Hubbard and Fowler McCormick, gathered at the bedside of their mother several days ago. Her divorced husband, Harold F. McCormick, came to Chicago from California, where it was apparent the illness would be fatal.

Arriving with Rockefeller was his son, Nelson, his sister, Mrs. E. Parmelee Prentice, and Max Oser, former Swiss riding master and husband of Mathilde McCormick Oser.

Rockefeller refused to discuss reports confirmed by Edward Dato that an agreement was reached with Edwin Krenn, social and business associate of Mrs. McCormick, since her divorce in 1921, by which Krenn relinquished any part of the McCormick estate he might be heir to and withdrew his interest in the firm of Krenn & Dato, for consideration of a $2,000 monthly income for life guaranteed by Dato. The Chicago Tribune said Mrs. McCormick had bequeathed five twelfths of her estate to Krenn.

Estate Has Shrunk
Mrs. McCormick's estate once estimated to exceed $40,000,000 was known to have shrunk considerably in recent years but no estimate of its present value was obtainable.

"On August 14, while Mrs. McCormick was dying in the Drake Hotel," the Tribune said, "Mr. Krenn signed an agreement by which he renounced all claim to the estate and to the firm of Krenn and Dato and accepted in lieu thereof a guarantee of $2,000 a month income for the duration

Wheat Prices Surge Upward Today Along With Other Values

Chicago, Aug. 27—(AP)—Wheat prices bounded upward under the impetus of a confident surge of buying today, opening 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel higher than the close of Friday.

Only when December futures had touched 58 cents a bushel was there sufficient selling to check the upward movement. Yesterday December contracts had closed at 55 1/2 to 56 cents.

The strength in cotton and stock markets was injected into the wheat trade, but the pit seemed to show confidence on its own part. Prices in the first hour were the highest since Aug. 12.

PEACE SETTLES ON TWO FRONTS FARMERS' FIGHT

No Violence Reported Today In Council Bluffs Area

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Aug. 27—(AP)—Peace settled on the Council Bluffs and Sioux City sectors of the farmers' war for higher prices today.

Picketing continued on three of the four main highways leading into Council Bluffs, Sheriff P. A. Lathrop reported, but was without violence of any kind. He expressed the opinion that the strike movement was "fading out."

A settlement of the milk price war at Sioux City last night served to relieve the tension of the situation. An agreement was signed to give producers $1.80 per hundred weight for their product. The previous top was $1.40. Immediately afterwards the producers agreed to lift their blockade of the city.

Threats of picketing at Shenandoah, about 60 miles southeast of here, vanished when Holiday leaders agreed with business men and producers dealers to use radio in a persuasion campaign for the movement. Pickets were withdrawn and three Holiday leaders left the city to broadcast daily on three five minute periods over local stations.

In Nebraska pickets were maintained at Blair on the principal roads leading into Omaha from the northeast part of the state. They permitted truckers to go through yesterday with a warning that "this is the last time."

GREAT STIKE ON IN COTTON MILLS IN GREAT BRITAIN

200,000 Workers Called Out—Bitter Feeling Adds Fuel to Fire

Manchester, Eng., Aug. 27—(AP)—At noon today the factory whistles throughout Lancashire called 200,000 cotton workers out on a strike which threatens to become the greatest industrial war since the nationwide general strike of 1926.

How far the strike call will be obeyed by the weavers, who are the first affected, will not be known until Monday morning when the mills reopen their doors. Only a small response to the call is expected in some districts because of temporary working agreements already operative. In other districts the stoppage will be complete.

The tragic aspects of the grim struggle in which women and children will be the real sufferers, is that the negotiations for peace were wrecked, not on the main issue of wages—but in the reinstatement of about 3,000 workers already on strike.

Much Distress Feared
On Monday at least 150,000 will be out of work. In their present bitter mood, only the industrial law of attrition seems likely to bring the employers and the operatives together for renewed negotiations. Many cases of distress already were being handled today in Lancashire. Several organizations were distributing food parcels, but the problem of relief will be greater next week.

There was no sign that the government would intervene at the present stage.

ART SHEFFIELD IS WINNER OF $11,000 TRAPSHOOT PRIZE

Dixonite Won Richest Prize In Gun World At Ohio Contest

Arthur E. Sheffield of 614 E. Chamberlain street, a railway postal clerk, who became disgusted with trapshooting and quit the sport eleven years ago, yesterday won the richest prize in the gun world—the Grand American handicap championship and its purse of $11,000—in the annual tournament at Vandalia, Ohio.

An Associated Press dispatch from Vandalia to The Telegraph this morning stated that "Sheffield's victory was the most impressive when weather conditions were taken into consideration. Standing on the 21-yard line and facing a driving rain that at times almost obscured sight of the targets, the Dixon marksman cracked 98 out of 100 targets and outclassed a field of 722 marksmen from all parts of the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone. The championship contest yesterday afternoon was the climax of the tournament."

"The nine days of continuous firing at clay targets will end this afternoon when the doubles championship of North America for men, women and professionals will be decided.

"In addition to settling the doubles titles, the $500 Vandalia Open also billed for this afternoon, the finale of the thirty-third annual trapshooting program.

"Gus Payne from Oklahoma who has been near the top all week, but not quite in the money will defend his two-target title won last year when he smashed 185 out of a possible 200. Sam Jenny of Highland Ill., is figured to give Payne his stiffest competition."

MA FERGUSON IN PRIMARY BATTLE
IN TEXAS TODAY

The Run-off Primary Between Gov. Sterling and "Ma" On Today

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 27 (AP)—The two candidates for the Texas Democratic nomination for governor in a run-off primary today were not unfamiliar to the voters—one was Gov. Ross S. Sterling and the other was "Ma" Ferguson.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, once Chief Executive and the wife of James E. Ferguson who was impeached as Governor in 1917, faced the incumbent.

John N. Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives and Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, has declined to take sides in the governorship race, following his practice of abstaining from state politics since he was first elected to Congress 30 years ago.

He had no comment on the request of R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman, that he recommend the renomination of Sterling. Creager said the return of the Fergusons to power would be an "unthinkable misfortune."

Democratic nomination in Texas is tantamount to election.

The campaign between Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson was a bitter one. The chief issues were administration of the State Highway Department, enforcement of the oil conservation laws and the candidates' two sets of plans for achieving tax relief.

DAWN BROUGHT NO WORD FROM OCEAN FLIERS

Aviation Authorities Cling To Forlorn Hope Today

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 27—(AP)—Morning dawned without relief to the anxiety felt for the missing Atlantic fliers, Clyde Lee and John Bechkon, unreported since they hopped off at 5:02 A. M. (EST) Thursday from Harbor Grace, N. F.

The major airports continued their vigil especially along the coast.

Authorities held to a fading hope the fliers might have been delayed and yet had enough fuel to land in some isolated spot.

However, if they flew continuously, their fuel could not have lasted, by any stretch of the imagination, beyond 1 A. M. (7 P. M. Eastern Standard Time last night).

KNIGHTS OF THE AIR.

London—Two men who have done much for British aviation interests have been elevated to the knighthood. One is J. D. Siddeley, chief of the Armstrong Siddeley interests and chairman of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors. The other is Air Commodore C. E. Kingsford-Smith, noted air pilot.

Close Call for Speed King

"Well, it was a close call," muses Jimmie Doolittle, America's premier speed flyer, as he surveys his wrecked plane in which he made a forced landing at Wichita, Kan., after having been "stuck in the air" when his retractable landing gear jammed. Doolittle finally made a "skid landing" without wheels, and here's what happened.

Political Highlights of Week Over the Nation

By BYRON PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Increasing definiteness was given the presidential campaign, and the issues between Republican and Democratic parties, by events of the week now concluding but most political activity was in the nature of groundwork for the future.

Of the two candidates, Governor Roosevelt alone engaged in any direct campaigning, making Thursday night a personal appeal for campaign funds to a nationwide radio audience. His brief talk was marked by such assertions as that the Democratic party is "not for sale" that it has "no favorite group upon which it can call for large sums under promise or privilege of immunity express or implied," and "no Grundys to collect donations which are to be returned manyfold through tariff increases."

On the Republican side Secretary Hurley's sharply worded challenge in Rhode Island to the Roosevelt speech at Columbus, Ohio, a week ago loomed as the most direct administration answer yet voiced to the criticisms of Hoover policy by the Democratic candidate.

Governor Roosevelt furnished another Democratic highlight in denying Mayor Walker's plea to inject the question or partisan political motives into the hearing before him or the fitness of Walker to retain his office.

Beyond this, the week witnessed the start of a mobilization by both parties of shock-troop campaign orators. These included feminine political notables like former Governor Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, Democrat, and Mrs. G. W. Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Curtis, Republican, for the Maine state campaign that some party leaders always regard as a political barometer in presidential election years.

In Washington, it saw President Hoover's latest conference with industrial and commercial leaders from the twelve Federal reserve districts assembled to receive suggestions for a new attack on the forces of depression.

And in New York state it saw the name of former Governor Alfred E. Smith appear among those of delegates to the Democratic state convention in October despite his present aloofness from politics and newly assumed editorial duties. His continued silence left purely conjectural the question of whether the expected mutual efforts of Governor Roosevelt and the former governor to secure nomination of Lieutenant Governor Lehman as Roosevelt's successor at Albany would be followed by Smith's support of the Roosevelt-Garner national ticket.

GARNER ACCEPTS IN LETTER WITH ATTACK ON G.O.P.

Assails Republican Leaders, the Tariff and the Dry Laws

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—With the last of the formal acceptances on the record and Speaker John Nance Garner assailing what he termed the "failure of Republican leadership," the Democrats today were ready for action on all fronts.

The Garner acceptance of the vice presidential nomination, which was accompanied by no more ceremony than it takes to drop a letter in a post box, was made public here yesterday. He charged Republican leaders in Washington with failure to act courageously when the slump came or to take adequate relief measures and he laid "nearly all our civic troubles" to "government's departure from its legitimate functions."

Set New Low Cost

His notification and acceptance set a new low—six cents—in the matter of expenditure. Sen. Alben W. Barkley, temporary chairman of the national convention, sent him a letter from Washington, in which he praised the speaker highly, and Garner answered in another letter dated from his home at Uvalde, Tex.

Mr. Garner assailed the Hawley-Smoot tariff as causing a great decline in trade, attacked what he called the steady encroachment of the Federal government on the rights and duties of the states. Regarding prohibition, he declared that unlike the Republican plank, the Democratic plank made no attempt to be equivocal.

"No other constructive solution of the problems of the 18th amendment brought upon the country has been offered," he said. "Return of control and supervision to the states, where it rightfully belongs, should be welcomed by all who realize the growth of the evils which followed placing of this power in the hands of the Federal government."

The Aims of Government

Concerning the aims of government, he said: "It is not the business of government to make individuals rich, though too often has government been bent to that purpose. Nor is it a function of an administration to direct the personal affairs of mankind, except insofar as it places a bar against such things as involve injury, loss or discomfort to others. I have ever been of the belief that attempting to enforce morals by law was an unjustifiable invasion of the field pre-empted by the churches and schools and putting the government into business is a violation of the nation's industrial and commercial fabric."

"Government is not a pedagogic nor a person nor a pious pipe; it is merely a convenience of civilization by which a set of rules is enforced on a community in the interest of order and justice."

There will be a special program tonight, including Hal Gilbertson, the saxophone soloist and the "Jack's Trio." This is a vocal trio composed of two brothers and a sister, directed by W. E. Jack.

THE PINE TREE

KNOW a hill where a pine tree stands,
A Norway pine from storm-swept lands,
With sturdy branches stretched to the wind
And ballast roots, all intertwined,
And a heart that is lifted when storms sweep past
And the sky is black and overcast.

For it loves life best when the clouds hang low
And it sings with its branches, to and fro,
For it fears no wind, no storm that blows,
Not the pelt of hail, nor the winter snows,
For the pine tree's heart is keyed to the sky.
And strong-breasted birds with their wheezy cry!

Summer Desserts, Delicious, Easy to Make

Busy days of early autumn make the home-maker eager for shortcuts in the preparation of meals. Simple desserts that take almost no time to make but are restive looking will answer the sweet problem.

While any of the following desserts can be made entirely with home-made ices and cakes, they can also be made with commercial products with excellent results. The ready-to-use materials are a great convenience and time-saver, for no preliminary preparation is required.

Chocolate cream roll is one of the easiest desserts to make, but it has the effect of being elaborate and tricky. It can be served within an hour after making or it can ripen in the refrigerator for ten hours or longer. You simply spread chocolate wafers with sweetened, whipped cream and pile them in a tall stack. About sixteen wafers will be needed for a family of four. Two-thirds to three-fourth cup of whipping cream will make enough after it is whipped to spread over the wafers and cover the tops and sides of the rolls. When ready to serve, cut in slices diagonally in order to show the layer effect. Ginger wafers can be used in place of chocolate if a spicy effect is wanted.

An attractive way to serve fresh fruit and cake is to spread the top and sides of plain cup cakes with jelly. Sprinkle with shredded cocoanut and top with whipped cream. Arrange a circle of sliced peaches or other fruit around the case of the cake.

If you like to serve your desserts in one large form rather than individual service this same idea can be carried out with a sponge cake or angel food. Cover top and sides of cake with jelly and sprinkle with shredded cocoanut. Top with whipped cream and arrange a circle of fruit around base of cake. This of course, is served on a large flat plate or glass tray and each person helps himself.

Another cake and fruit dessert uses the juice of fruit to advantage. A square of sponge or other plain cake is moistened with fruit juice and a slice of the fruit is placed on the cake. The whole is garnished with whipped cream and a contrasting fruit. An ice cream or sherbet can be used in place of whipped cream. For instance, if you use canned peaches, fill the cavity of each peach with raspberry sherbet. Try pistachio ice cream with canned pineapple.

Plans Announced For Fall Flower Show Sept. 9, 10, 11

Plans for the Fall Flower Show to be sponsored by the Elks Club, which will probably be held on September 9th, 10th and 11th, are well under way. The committees have been appointed and a long list of prizes is being selected.

On account of the possibility of a scarcity of flowers due to the dry weather during the past month, a large part of the show will be devoted to decorated tables, and it is anticipated that this feature will add a great deal of interest to the exhibition.

Owing to the great amount of time required to personally solicit all growers of flowers, and on account of the publicity given to the show held in June, it is hoped that it will not be necessary for the solicitation committee to communicate with those who exhibited in the spring, but the committee urges everyone who can possibly do so to enter the competition and not to hesitate on account of the fact that they have not been personally solicited.

Those who have flowers, plants, or shrubs in addition to those for which prizes are to be given are all so urged to exhibit them, as these features add greatly to the interest of the show.

A list of the committees is as follows:

AN EXAMPLE FOR THE MARATHONERS.

Seven New Jersey youngsters have just tried basking in fame and found they didn't think much of it.

The seven were Johnny Donito, aged 13, and six of his friends who undertook to prove that Johnny's self-made coaster wagon was just as durable as any handsome, highly varnished coaster bought at a store. The boys, who live in Hackensack, organized a long distance, non-stop wagon-pushing endurance marathon.

They christened Johnny's wagon "The Spirit of Hackensack" and, working in one-hour shifts, they pushed and steered it up and down the block day and night, rain or shine for 250 hours. Crowds came to watch them. Newspapers printed their pictures. It was all just like a regular marathon.

At first it was a lot of fun. Presently—just as in a regular marathon—the boys became tired. It occurred to Johnny Donito that, even if his coaster did set a record, by the time he had won the wagon would be badly used up, maybe worn out.

Some of the others thought about baseball and swimming and the movies. School vacation was drawing to an end and what remained should be made the most of. So the youngsters called off their marathon.

Most of the seven were 13 years old or younger, but they have set an example their elders would do well to follow. The hundreds of adults all over the country quick to adopt each new whim of the exhibitionist—dance marathons, flagpole sitting, walking derbies and the like—would do well to bow their heads to these seven youngsters who tried a marathon, discovered it was foolish and made the wise decision to quit and go home.

OUR YEARNING FOR ADVENTURE.

From London comes news of one of the strangest expeditions to be undertaken in recent years. A group of British explorers, headed by Captain V. De La Motte Hurst of the Royal Geographical Society, are preparing to set forth for Madagascar to find the "sacrifice tree," said to devour human beings.

During tribal ceremonies there it is reported that natives offer up young girls in sacrifice to this tree, described as about eight feet high, six feet at the base and having huge concave leaves lined with "claws" secreting an intoxicating liquid. The victim is compelled to drink this liquid and then forced into the tree, after which the leaves wrap about her, crushing her to death.

It all sounds like a chapter from Trader Horn's adventures, but the expedition is to be made in real earnest. When Captain Hurst's party returns perhaps the world will know more about the sacrifice tree—and perhaps not. In order to search far corners of the earth there must always be an "object" and a sacrifice tree will do as well as any other. In reality that object is likely to be man's thirst for adventure.

It's deep down, this yearning to shake off civilization and revert to the thrills and hazards of primitive life. Those who can not make such trips can at least read about them.

Thousands are doing it, for travel and adventure books have never been more popular. Motion pictures of jungle life are pronounced box office successes. The machine age, for all its heralded dangers, has not yet changed this element in human nature.

A CAPITAL SUGGESTION.

The recent suggestion of the Alabama Association of Real Estate Boards that the state's 67 county governments be consolidated into a number not exceeding the number of congressional districts is one of unusual merit.

In these days of mounting governmental costs, the elimination of a large part of administrative expense is an economy which the hard-pressed taxpayers richly deserve.

Counties, with the possible exception of a few of the western states, are entirely too small. They were formed in the horse-and-buggy era, when 30 miles was a long day's journey. With the advent of modern transportation facilities and good roads, the logic back of the small county areas has disappeared.

Today the cost of small county government is a luxury we can ill afford.

A BENEFIT FROM EMPTY POLITICAL CHESTS.

The two major political parties are bemoaning the fact that their campaign chests will be all but empty this year. The chances are that the public won't miss the flood of literature, radio hot air, and political breast-beating which will be absent as a result.

But there is another and more real benefit. The winning party will not have its "angels" to take care of in such numbers as is customary.

With the donors of $100,000 checks reduced to ranks, the chances of getting men really qualified for public places will materially improve.

TRUE LOVE TRIANGLES—NO. 6

FAMED BLOND BEAUTY OF MOVIES ACCUSED BY SOCIETY WIFE AS "LOVE PIRATE"

Claire Windsor Sued For $100,000 In Coast Triangle

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of six daily stories detailing glamorous romances that have marked true love triangles of 1932, a subject made timely by the three-cornered Libby Holman-Ed Walker-Smith Reynolds tragedy in North Carolina.

By NEA Service—

The woman was hailed a few years ago as "the most beautiful blond in the movies" today stands accused as a "love pirate," faced by a suit for $100,000 by the wife of the man whose affections she is alleged to have stolen.

Whether Claire Windsor, film star whose graceful beauty once captivated millions of movie-goers must pay this price to Mrs. Marian Y. Read for the lost love of her husband, Alfred C. Read Jr., is a question that now pend before the courts at Oakland, Calif., where Mrs. Read's alienation suit is on file. Moreover, Mrs. Read has sued her husband for divorce, naming Miss Windsor as co-respondent.

The former movie queen, the 29-year old San Francisco stock broker and his socially prominent wife form the three points in this Pacific coast love triangle.

Claire Windsor's famous beauty—hair like golden sunshine, eyes of deepest blue and features like those of a Dresden china doll—had been pretty well forgotten until last March when Mrs. Read filed her $100,000 suit. Then those whose memory goes back to the days of the silent films remembered Miss Windsor for her success ful roles in such bygone pictures as "Fools First," "Brothers Under the Skin," "Captain Lash" and "Midstream."

MRS. MARIAN Y. READ

Principals in this triangle are shown here. The picture of Read and Miss Windsor is one which Read said he gave his wife "in good faith" when it was proposed that she drop her $100,000 suit against the actress.

They remembered, too, that she had been the wife of Bert Lytell, that she and Lytell had eloped to Mexico in 1925 and that about a couple of years later this union had come to the parting of ways, as most movie marriages do.

CLAIRE WINDSOR

ALFRED C. READ

Then Claire had faded out of the picture into the forgotten limbo of ex-stars.

Suddenly Miss Claire Windsor's name came back into the news. She was playing in Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar," at San Francisco when officers served on her the papers in Mrs. Read's $100,000 suit which charged that the famous blond beauty stole the affections of Mr. Read, prominent stock broker and former University of California athlete.

Mrs. Read charged that her husband was "constantly in the company" of Miss Windsor when he was in Los Angeles, "supposedly on business." She declared the actress had pursued "a course of conduct calculated to win his love." Almost simultaneously, she filed the divorce suit naming Miss Windsor as co-respondent.

"Why the very idea!" exclaimed Claire. "I never lured any man away from his wife and never expected to. Of course, I know Mr. Read; I was introduced to him by Louis Epstein, Al Jolson's manager, but I don't know why all this fuss should be made over my knowing him. Honestly, I don't know what it is all about; it has me flabbergasted or floundered, or something like that."

Very adroitly, Mrs. Read obtained letters that Claire had written to her husband and pictures showing them in friendly poses. She submitted the pictures as proof of her contentions.

And so, in July, when Claire Windsor was called upon to make a deposition under oath, it is said she admitted she "had loved" Mr. Read, but denied alienating his affections.

Roy Hudson, attorney for Mrs. Read, said that Claire admitted writing the letters and quoted her as having said in the deposition:

"Yes, I wrote those letters. I was very fond of Mr. Read then. In fact you might say I loved him. But I had no idea I was coming between him and his wife. I had no desire to break up anybody's home. I thought Mr. Read and his wife had separated. He led me to believe that."

Whereupon Mrs. Read commented: "Miss Windsor has admitted just exactly what I have stated in my suit."

Midway between the filing of the suit and Claire's deposition came an exciting episode.

In May, Mrs. Read had her husband arrested on a charge that he had kidnaped her at the point of a gun. She told Oakland police that he had abducted her from the home of friends and, with several accomplices, driven her to a lonely spot in a forest 30 miles away. She said she obtained the car keys and escaped when her husband fell asleep beside the road.

One report had it that a reconciliation was the purpose of the alleged kidnaping. Another report had it that Read was trying to effect the return of letters written to him by Miss Windsor which, it was said, he had previously turned over to his wife in an attempted reconciliation and upon her promise that she would drop her suit.

Mrs. Read declared she had no intention of dropping it. However, she admits spending part of a night in a hotel with her husband to get the Windsor letters.

Confident of vindication, Miss Windsor has declared that she is ready for a "fight to the finish." She asserts that it is her duty to beat the case and thus protect other movie luminaries from "unwarranted charges."

"Time after time, my friends have been unjustly accused and I suppose it is my turn now," says the beautiful blond. "I am going to fight to a finish because it is high time to stop this abuse of people in the public eye.

"It is all so utterly absurd; why I have seen Mr. Read only five or six times in my life."

Viola Cronk—the Topeka school girl who found fame in Hollywood after a brief residence in Seattle and changed her name to Claire Windsor—has known romance before.

When still in her teens she was married to William Bowles, whom she divorced in 1920 and by whom she has a son, Billie Bowles, born in 1919.

In 1925 she married Bert Lytell soon after the latter's divorce from Evelyn Vaughan. That romance wilted in 1927 when, it is said, Bert found it necessary to spend a lot of time on the road in vaudeville appearances. Rumor also linked her name with that of Buddy Rodgers in his calf-love days and, only a few years ago, with the young multi-millionaire, Philip Plant, who is listed among the former husbands of Constance Bennett. In 1930 Claire was abroad Plant's yacht when it was sunk in a collision off Stamford, Conn., and was rescued from the sea.

Today the former movie queen is as beautiful as ever. She is five feet, six inches in height; her weight still remains at 126 pounds or thereabouts, her deep blue eyes are as luminous as before and her famous blond tresses are still her crowning glory.

Mr. Read has been accused by his wife of a lot of things—but moody has accused him of being a poor judge of beauty.

Creamery Butter And Slaughtering Plants Slow Up

Chicago, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A reduction of 5 1-2 per cent in the volume of production at slaughtering plants in the United States in July from June was reported today in a business condition report issued for the seventh Federal Reserve District.

Creamery butter manufactured in the seventh district decreased 16 per cent in July, or more than a seasonal amount from a month earlier, to a level 4 per cent under a year ago and 18 per cent below the 1922-23 averages. Prices advanced.

Of course the Tinies gathered 'round when Duncy was knocked to the ground. The punch the monkey gave him took him right off his feet.

The monkey, in the meantime, stood nearby. He knew that he was good. Poor Duncy looked around a bit and said, "That blow was neat."

"I saw it coming rather fast and hoped that it would sail right past. The next thing that I knew, I did a flip-flop in the air."

"The monkey's trained to fight, I guess, 'cause out of me he made a mess. I lost my first real boxing match, but shucks, I do not care."

Then to the winning monk the bunch exclaimed, "You have a real stiff punch. Some other time we'll come again and then we'll try some more."

Right now we're going to look around, and trust that new sights will be found. You'd better stop your fighting for today, or you'll be sore."

The monkey chattered long and loud and waved to all the Tiny crowd. And then he scampered up a tree and soon fell fast asleep.

"He's all tired out," one Tiny said. "That's why he rests his weary head. I'll bet he'll snooze for hours and hours and never even peep."

And so they left the beast behind and walked until they chanced to find a funny little railroad train that ran all through play park.

"Gee, but that's cute," wee Scouty cried. "Let's see if we can have a ride. There's room enough for all of us and it will be a lark."

The monkey engineer said, "Yes, you all can hop right in, I guess. I'll make my little train go fast so you must hang on tight."

So, as the Tinies hopped right in, on each one's face there was a grin. The engine then began to puff, which filled them with delight.

(The Tinies leave Monkey Land in the next story.)

Rebuilding Prosperity

THE plain average men and women of every community are quietly and steadily accumulating, through their modest savings, the new national wealth of the future.

There is no other way. What the world has lost through war, speculation, folly or misfortune, can be restored only by the patient labor and thrift of the many.

We can pass no new laws, however sound, which will be a substitute for the old rule which says: "Live within income, spend wisely, save regularly."

CUBS CAN TAKE BREATHING TIME IF THEY DESIRE

Grimm's Pepper Boys Are Six and Half Games in Front

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Editor

For the first time since Chas. Grimm took over the reins, the Chicago Cubs can afford to sit back and take a breathing spell. Winner of seven successive games and 17 of the 22 they've played under Grimm's leadership, the Cubs today were six and a half games in front of the National League field.

They trounced the pennant-hungry Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday for the third time in a row, 10-4, smashing Hollis Thurston, Dazzy Vance and Jack Quinn for eight hits and nine runs in the eighth inning. Behind that lead, Lon Warneke coasted to his 19th victory of the campaign. The sensational rookie right-hander has lost only five games, three of them to the Dodgers.

The Dodgers, their pennant hopes temporarily dimmed, now must turn their attention to holding on to second place. While they were taking their trouncing at Chicago, the Pittsburgh Pirates behind the seven-hit pitching of Leon Chagnon, blanked the Phillies, 8-0, and moved to within half a game of the Dodgers.

Dean Wins Again

The only other National League game of the day provided Dizzy Dean with a chance to win his second game in three days. He pitched the Cardinals to a 4-2 decision over the New York Giants, allowing only five hits of which two were home runs by Carl Hubbell and Melvin Ott.

There was no change in the relative standing of the American League leaders as the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics both won. Johnny Allen out-pitched Wes Ferrell as the Yankees beat Cleveland, 4-2. Gehrig's 29th homer and Ruth's 37th helped the young right hander hang up his eighth successive victory and his 14th against two defeats this season.

Home runs by Bob Grove, Al Simmons and Jimmie Fox, the latter's 47th of the campaign, helped the Athletics to whip the St. Louis Browns, 5-4 although it was Simmons' single in the ninth that drove across the winning run. Grove struck out 10 men in winning his 20th game of the year. The Chicago White Sox collected 16 hits, including seven doubles and two home runs, and still managed to lose a decision to the Boston Red Sox, 11-8. The Red Sox got 13 hits and, what is more to the point, 14 passes from Goston, Gallivan, Chamberlain and Faber.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER

That well-known little bird that goes busily about carrying tid-bits of gossip from town to town was chirping noisily in our neighborhood the other day.

"Where have you been all summer," said the little fellow, "that you haven't printed the big news about the trades Mr. Connie Mack is going to make. Your ignorance is alarming."

An honest confession is good for the soul. I confessed that I had been trying to get the water out of my ears ever since suffering an early-season outdoor plunge on Decoration Day, and still wasn't able to hear very well.

"Why?" I asked the little birdie "what is doing, pal?"

"There's plenty doing," replied my feathered friend. "For one thing, George Earnshaw is going to be traded. Al Simmons is going to be traded. And, of all things Mickey Cochrane is going to be traded. Don't tell me you haven't heard all about it!"

HEY! WHAT'S THIS?

"Traded," replied my correspondent, "to whom, and for what price?"

"Traded to the White Sox," replied talkative birdie. "Well, not so much traded as sold. Mr. Mack hasn't been making money this year the way the Shibes over at Philadelphia are accustomed to see him make it. The club is in the red, and is losing caste. Would you believe it when I tell you that a large part of the A's following in Philly has swung over to the Phils?"

"How much money does Mr. Mack expect to make by selling Simmons, Cochrane and Earnshaw to the White Sox?"

THE PRICE TAGS—

"Well, you know as much about that as I would. How much do you think they would be worth to a team like the White Sox?"

"About half a million dollars." "You don't mean that, of course. But they are worth $250,000 and there isn't a doubt in the world about it."

"Say, birdie—what is Mr. Mack going to do for a baseball team next year without those three people?"

"Mr. Mack is going to build up to take their places. He figures the team needs new blood. Simmons has slumped and needs a change. Big George is too familiar with the place, and instead of pitching, just clowns around. And Cochrane isn't satisfied. Mickey feels that a change would do him good."

"The fact is, a team with a payroll like the A's has to win a pennant to make any money in a city the size of Philadelphia."

"But imagine the White Sox in the first division, fighting for the pennant! You can bet your last shirt that Comiskey Park would be filled all night before every home game."

COMISKEY ALL SET—

"Have the White Sox enough money to buy these three star players?"

"Well, Louis Comiskey says he isn't going to stop until he has the White Sox up there fighting for a pennant, and Louie has a pretty important bankroll to work with, you know."

"You doesn't that mean more lean years ahead for the A's?"

"Not especially. Mr. Mack figures that he might as well have a fifth place club as one that runs second, so far as patronage at the ball park is concerned. And just look at the cut he will be making in the payroll! That's something to be considered, too, isn't it?"

"Well, yes, perhaps it is."

Rockford Country Club, Ill., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Gus Moreland, 21-year-old Dallas, Tex., sharpshooter, found a "week-end" gofer in his road today as he hauled out his lusty war clubs for a final assault on the western amateur championship.

His rival in the final 36 hole struggle for the crown was Ira "Ike" Couch, 27-year-old Chicago broker, who fools around the golf yards on week-ends only just to get a "kick" out of trimming the recognized "big shots."

Not many observers gave him much more than a fighting chance to turn back the iron-nerved Texan except his golfing cronies, who know his habit of knocking em off.

Moreland was the rightful favorite down the stretch. Surviving a dramatic battle yesterday, he overhauled one of the finest amateurs of the game, Charlie Seaver of Los Angeles, one up, in a match that didn't end until the last putt clattered off his club. So heated was the struggle that it was knotted six times in the course of 36 holes.

Putts, iron shots and steel nerve carried Moreland to his triumph. In the morning he dropped an eight-foot putt to square the match at lunch time; in the final drive, he came from behind with sub-par golf to overtake his rival and then win on the strength of perfect golf.

Couch romped into the finals with probably the biggest upset of the tournament by defeating Johnny Lehman of Chicago, tournament medalist, with a record of 36-hole tally of 137 shots with the one-sided margin of 4 and 3. He failed to shoot the brand of Moreland's golf but he fired up his long lead after 29 holes and played his rival's game shot for shot.

In his sweep to the finals, Moreland has defeated the better rated golfers in the tournament, his victims were I. E. Bunning, Chicago, 6 and 5; Rodney Bliss, Nebraska state amateur champion, 2 and 1; Dick Ashley, Kenosha, Wis., 5 and 4 and Seaver.

Couch, not even regarding as championship threat, waded through Harry Laveau, Rockford, 5 and 4; George Dawson, Chicago 2 and 1; Johnny Banks, Chicago, western junior champion, 4 and 3, and finally Lehman.

The City Dudes took the lead from Wink's Specials in the fourth game of the series for the city soft ball championship last evening, completely outplaying the National League champions and winning hands down, 7 to 2. The Dudes collected 14 hits against the Specials six. The Specials took the lead in the first inning on a single by Elwood McReynolds and a double by Clyde Daniels.

The Dudes came right back in the second to score twice and take the lead, which they held throughout the game. Ray Daniels for the Specials played a brilliant game at second, grabbing off several shots that were labeled as hits when they left the bat.

The series will be resumed Monday evening.

New Orleans Wins Junior Regional

Omaha, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The New Orleans Papooses won the hope of the west in the "little world series" of the American Legion annual baseball tournament.

The southerners earned their way to the final contest at Manchester, N. H., Aug. 30 to Sept. 1, by defeating Los Angeles here yesterday, 11 to 6 for the regional title. In the eastern meet the Papooses will face Springfield, Mass.

New Orleans presented a swift fielding, steady hitting team in going through the regional meet and other western teams declare the Papooses will give a good account of themselves in the final series.

A wonder city is one where the city government runs the city in the same way as a successful business.

From the arguments of the different countries who desire to retain armaments or in any way increase their military or naval strength, it will be found that all base their claims to do so on the necessity for security. In pre-war days a place in the sun was considered a good enough excuse. This country says nothing about a place in the sun, but does demand security. This is sound common sense, for while a place in the sun may glorify a country, it does not provide security and security is what America needs.

If you have a car to sell you will probably get more for it if you advertise it in this newspaper. There seems to be a lot of folks who are firmly convinced that people can be made good by an act of Congress.

The prosperity of any business depends upon the prosperity of the community in which it is located. We cannot economize ourselves into prosperity.

The time has come when even rich people must weigh the value of a dollar. The busy housewife takes time nowadays to read carefully the advertising columns of her newspaper in order to find goods of quality at reasonable prices.

It seems that the profession of lobby is terribly overcrowded right now.

I recently attended a meeting of the Oklahoma Press Association. One of the editors in attendance told me that human nature is slowly climbing the ladder of perfection and that a time will come when all our actions will be governed by reason and all our thoughts lightened by wisdom. Personally, I don't expect the present generation will see such a happy condition.

A city worth living in is a city worth working for.

RAIN FALLS 250 DAYS OUT OF THE YEAR ON THE FALKLAND ISLANDS, OFF THE COAST OF ARGENTINA.

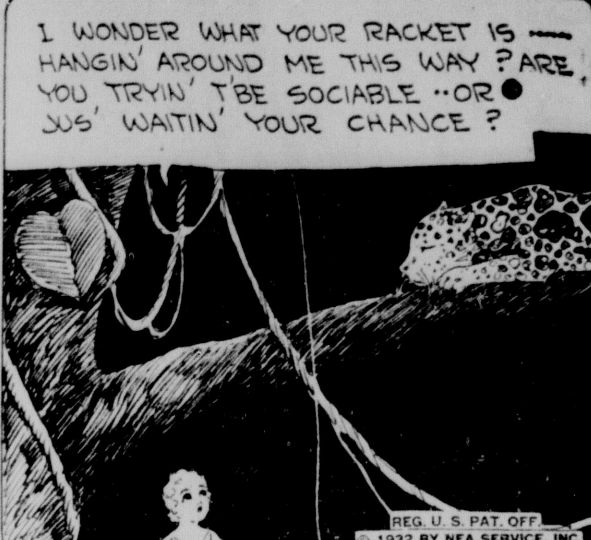

The sage hen is the largest representative of the grouse family in the United States. It lives in regions where sagebrush is plentiful, and sage leaves form a large part of its food supply. In the old birds the flavor of sage becomes so strong that the meat is unpalatable. The flesh of the young is excellent, however, and hunters have taken a heavy toll in the sage hen population . . . so much so that there is grave danger of extinction.

Brief Items Of News From Dixon State Hospital

Dr. Louise Keator, one of the institution's most popular doctors, is enjoying her annual vacation. Miss Emma Smith of 810 N. Ottawa avenue, kindly sent a large number of magazines to the patients. The management always welcomes donations of this kind. They give pleasure and entertainment to many.

Dr. Richard Graff has returned from a pleasant vacation and is deeply engrossed in his professional duties again.

About Sept. 15 the fall season for showing moving pictures will begin. The movies are a great source of pleasure to the patients.

The canning season is always a busy one at the institution. One day recently 2,000 gallons of tomatoes were put up for the winter. Many more will be canned as the season progresses. The many apple trees on the grounds furnished over 200 gallons of apple butter, which is now ready for the tables during the winter months.

The first patient to register at the hospital was Job Hughes of Galesburg on May 1, 1918. He died three years ago, Harry Duhalp of Alledo was registered later the same day and has been a patient since.

The Herbert George Studio photographer recently took a number of pictures at the institution which will be reproduced in the state agricultural magazines.

At the request of the Department of Welfare Dr. Murray sent a consignment of gladioli to be exhibited at the state fair in Springfield this week. This speaks well for the head gardener of the institution, Mr. Keithley and his assistants. The flowers were very beautiful.

A STINGING REBUKE
Fifteen years ago, a mother had a five-year-old daughter committed to the feeble-minded institution at Lincoln. During these fifteen years the mother did not pay the slightest attention to her daughter, who developed into one of the brightest girls in the Lincoln school. She did not visit her or write any letters about her or to her; she did not send her any clothes or spending money for occasional luxuries, so much enjoyed by the boys and girls at the Lincoln institution. In fact, the daughter was completely ignored.

Recently this unnatural mother called at the institution. "I want to see my daughter," she said, at the same time mentioning the girl's name.

"Right over there," replied the attendant, pointing to three girls who were busily engaged at a long table on the opposite side of the room, standing side by side.

The woman started across the room, but turned and inquired of the attendant, "which one is my daughter?"

Surprised that this woman did not know her own daughter, the attendant pointed her out as the one in the middle.

Approaching the girl and calling her by name, the unnatural mother said, "I am your mother and have come to take you home."

"How do I know you are my mother?" replied the girl, shaking her head.

"Sure, I am your mother," continued the woman.

"It may be that you're my mother," answered the girl, with a determined expression on her face, and looking the woman straight in the eye. "But how do I know it? You're surely not been a real mother to me. Fifteen years ago, when I was five years old, you put me in this institution and I've been here ever since. During all these years you've not come to see me once; you haven't sent me anything, and I don't want anything to do with you. The only friends I've ever known are here. This is the only home I've ever known and I like it here. You'd better be going now, and let me get back to work."

In spite of this stinging rebuff, the woman continued to coax her daughter to go home with her, but to no avail, and she finally left the institution.

"Of course I wouldn't go home with her," said the girl to those about her after the woman had departed. "In the first place, I'm not sure she's my mother, as I don't remember what my mother looked like, and even if she is my mother, how do I know how she's treated me in the future when she's taken me interest in me in the past fifteen years? She probably thinks that now I'm a young lady, I could go out and work and earn money for her. But there's nothing doing. This place is home to me and I want to stay here."

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—There's nothing about Senator "Pete" Norbeck of South Dakota that would lead one to think that he has any Scottish blood in his veins or that he would be particularly interested in the question.

He's Norwegian and proud of the fact. He still retains an accent that marks him immediately as a Scandinavian, even if his appearance didn't make sure of it.

But he must admire the Scots a great deal for before he left Washington for the west he had put in the Congressional Record a study that took up some five pages in small type on "Scots and Scottish Influence in Congress."

The study, made of a past Congress and by a man around the Capital who styles himself as a legislative anthropologist, purports to show just how much better as legislators are those Senators who have Scottish blood in their veins.

In their educational status, the study shows, those Senators with Scottish blood stand much the highest. Thirty-seven per cent of them are university men, 52 per cent college men and only 11 per cent with common school education.

SCOTS DEBATE MOST
The Scots engage in debate more often than do other Senators and talk on more subjects. They answer more quorum calls and are present on voting occasions more often as well.

They are younger than the other Senators, their average age being 56 to 59 for other Senators.

But when it comes to getting the bills through, there is little difference between the Scottish and non-Scottish Senators.

"That the legislative superiority of Scotch blood is not accidental," says the study, "is shown further by the fact that conservative Republicans with Scottish blood are distinctly superior in legislative results to conservative Republicans without Scotch blood."

The study draws the same conclusions also as to "progressive" Republicans.

WITHOUT COMMENT
Just what is proved by the study, Senator Norbeck doesn't attempt to say. He merely put it in without comment.

From 1860 to 1900 there have been in the United States Senate some 80 men of Scottish descent. Some of the most outstanding are Blair, Cameron, Cockrell, Logan, McPherson, Teller, McNary, Vance, Blaine, Morton, McCumber, Breckinridge and Beveridge.

Perhaps it is necessary to go back further than the study itself to find a reason for its existence. Senator "Pete's" legislative anthropologist is a man by the name of MacDonald.

MONA TOWNSEND, married six months and widowed, inherits her husband's millions providing she does not renege. Her marriage arranged by Townsend's lawyer who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, BARRY TOWNSEND, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

Barry is in South America where he and STEVE SACCHARELLI are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, RUD, works for them. LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, is Mona's closest friend. Mona feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune but there is no legal way for her to arrange this. She employs LOTTIE as her secretary and companion and they decide to sail for South America. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry and also to find some means of aiding him financially.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

JACKSON had drawn the Townsend car up alongside the gang plank and the Morans flocked out ahead of the two travelers. The passenger agent hurried to greet Mrs. Townsend personally.

"Oh, steward," he called, beckoning. Immediately from nowhere two dusky white-coated members of the Miranda's crew hastened forward and picked up the suitcases, bags and dressing boxes which the two girls had considered adequate to contain the articles left out of yesterday's packing. The cabin, as they were to see, was filled with other articles.

"So this is a boat, Min. Are you sure?"

Mona was fumbling in her bag and presently brought forth an envelope. She withdrew two large rectangles of greenish paper and handed them to the agent.

"Tickets," breathed Kitty. "They look like wall paper."

"The further you go, the bigger they get!" someone explained.

Ma, instantly loyal, took Lottie's good-humored jibe not quite so good-humoredly. It sounded like a dig at Minnie's traveling arrangements. Wasn't Minnie putting up the money for everything? "Oh course it's a boat." Ma announced spiritedly. "And a fine boat, too. A fine little boat. What did you expect, a floating night club?"

"Something this side of the Nina or the Pinta," Lottie remarked. "Well, we're just a pair of vagabond travelers. What do we care?"

Following their guides, loaded with baggage, the girls made their way to the lower deck of the boat. Mona was not without certain misgivings before both she and Lottie had attended farewell parties on various transatlantic liners. She had expected better accommodations than were here.

THE little party made its way into the lower cabin, up a flight of stairs into the smoking room, thence on deck and up a flight of stairs to the boat deck.

"Mr. Ashton said this was the better deck. The natives swarm these boats at every port and on this deck it is impossible for them to look in at our port holes," Mona explained. "We have the state-room reserved for the government official at St. Thomas. It must be all right."

Stateroom A was the best the boat afforded. It was not large, nor could it be called small. Two iron beds were "rooted to the floor," as Ma put it. A dresser was likewise attached. There were two comfortable rattan armchairs, and a long mirror. Windows looked out on a tiny deck which the steward assured them was their own. The windows likewise faced the stern and the second cabin quarters.

Across a sweep of lower deck filled with winches, coils of rope and open hatches Mona could see the second cabin. It looked something like a miniature flatiron building shoved into the stern.

"Glory be, all Harlem is aboard!" was Ma's ejaculation. It almost seemed so. The second-class cabin and decks were filled to overflowing. Yellow girls, seal brown girls, all dressed in 1932 street version of the latest fashions. There were fat women, kink-haired women. A few children. Men who looked, and probably were, pillars of a church somewhere. Younger men in narrow hips, tightly belted coats, their hats askant. Crying women. Laughing women. All the varying shades of brown.

"Are they all leaving town?" Lottie gasped.

THEY were not all leaving town. It seemed. When the gong sounded for visitors to go the greater part of the gathering reluctantly sought the gang plank.

One woman wearing a blue suit that would have done Lottie credit burst into tears and flung her arms about the neck of a man in gray.

"You ain't never coming back!" she wailed. "You ain't never coming back. I know it!"

"Hush, Flo, honey."

"You ain't. You ain't!"

"Well, soothingly, 'I ain't if you don't want me to.'"

Lottie accompanied Kitty on a tour of inspection while Mona took leave of her mother. Lottie returned, far from intrigued with the Miranda.

"You can't buy candy," she said. "You can't even get a magazine."

"We have plenty of everything in our bags, Lottie."

"Yes, plenty," said Ma. "I packed them myself."

Another gong sounded.

"Are you sure this is a good cabin?" asked Ma doubtfully.

"Of course," Mona assured her. "These are the only de luxe—"

"Heaven help us!" Lottie interrupted here.

Mona continued. "These are the only de luxe rooms with windows out of reach of the natives. That seems important, particularly as we shall stop at so many islands. All day at some of them."

"They let the natives swarm the place?"

"It seems they do. They depend upon the natives for a lot of freight."

LOCKING the stateroom, the little party made its way to the lower deck but one, thence to the deck near the second cabin where the gangplank stood.

"Write now, Min!" cautioned Ma with flowing eyes. It was the first time Min had ever been away from her for periods of more than a few weeks.

"All ashore that's going ashore!" sang the steward.

"Goodby, Kitty. Be a good girl." "Write to me, Min, do," Kitty said shyly. "And give my love to Bud."

"Help Ma. Don't let her slip on the gangplank," Mona instructed. "We can't go down again. We are supposed to stay up here."

The deck hands were busy with ropes rushed this way and that, Ma and Kitty, among the last, were urged gently off the gangplank. The crowd surged forward to the end of the pier. The plank was drawn in amid much shouting. A dressmaker's messenger had arrived too late apparently. With excellent aim the package he held in his hand was tossed aboard and a name shouted.

The tug up forward had come alongside and suddenly the Miranda throbbed and quivered.

"Exactly on time," announced a fellow passenger at Lottie's elbow. The clock on the soap factory close at hand struck four.

The strip of water between the Miranda and the pier widened. Straw, bottles, orange peeling rose and swayed with the motion of the water. The Miranda sidestepped, moving out into the center of the river instead of forward. Then the ship shivered again and moved ahead. Past the Battery and Bedloe's Island. Out into the harbor.

South America lay ahead!

"I'm going to miss that old lady," said Lottie, wiping a tear away. Lottie was in fine fettle. Nothing short of police instructions would have been able to wrest her from the deck of the Miranda just then.

"Do you mean my mother?" queried Mona. "That's a nice way to talk!"

Lottie shook her head. "I don't mean your mother, you idiot! I mean Old Lady Liberty. The statue! This is the first time in my life I've ever left my country 'tis of the race. Now let's go inside and fix up pretty for the fellow voyagers."

AIRGARD

Guards Your Air

Eliminates
Noise and Dirt

Relieves Hay Fever

The Airgard is a miniature air conditioning unit for homes or offices that can be installed easily and quickly in any sliding window.

It draws in the fresh, outside air, cleanses it of dust and bacteria and releases it in full volume, without drafts, into the room to push out the stale polluted air. It shuts out street noises that wear on the nerves. It removes pollen and other irritants from the air, and makes any room a haven for sufferers from hay fever and bronchial asthma. It catches epidemic and disease germs that ride the dust particles. The Airgard is inexpensive in first cost and operation. Quickly pays for itself in savings to health and furnishings.

HAY-FEVER SUFFERERS will be particularly interested in the results accomplished by leading allergic specialists in the use of the Airgard in the treatment of seasonal hay-fever and bronchial asthma. A special brochure describing tests made at the College of Medical Research, University of Illinois, and giving the results accomplished by the use of filtered air in the treatment of a large number of typical hay-fever cases, is available to anyone who will write—
